Managing the family finances is about priorities and compromise.

Things you want often give way to things you need. But if you sit back and think about it, do you always get the balance right?

Take income protection insurance for example. Many of us assume it's expensive and unaffordable before we really do any research. But did you know that you could cover your income against the effects of ill health from as little as £11.49 per month?

That's about the cost of four morning cappuccinos, a couple of sandwiches or a takeaway for one.
