

► From sports star to sofa star

You may only be playing Sunday League football, but that doesn't stop you dreaming about lifting the FA Cup.

Unfortunately you don't stay young and fit forever, and one stretch too many could see you doing a stretch on the sofa instead.

It doesn't take a genius to work out that your love of sport means your chances of injury are much higher than average. And if your spell on the side-lines also extends to your working life, your personal finances could soon be in serious trouble.

Income protection could be your answer. It will pay you a regular monthly benefit if you're unable to work due to illness or injury, meaning a broken limb won't break you financially.
